Bold interventions

Known for its daring use of colour and pattern, fashion house Marni has partnered with Italian wallpaper studio Londonart on what it calls a 'riot of colours and energy'. A heady mix of florals, stripes and dramatic colours make up the wallpaper collection. 'Liberdade' (above) is for the brave. From £204 per sq m (londonart.it).

Right as rain

Get ready for the season ahead in style with Para Para's first artist-designed series of umbrellas, including collaborations with illustrator Malika Favre and Bao restaurant founder Erchen Chang. Favre's brotly (pictured) depicts an abstract cityscape, while Chang's is a playful take on a man singing in the rain. Both are handmade in London by James Ince Umbrellas, the UK's longest-running umbrella firm. From £115 (para-para.world).

Through the kaleidoscope

Synonymous with style, American wallpaper and fabric brand Schumacher is a must if you're after a bold pattern. Its latest block-print collection (including, from top: 'Topsy Turvy', 'Dagger Stripe' and 'RA Brown') has been made in collaboration with New York-based Drusus Tabor and is perfect for upholstering a statement armchair. From £132 per m (fschumacher.co.uk).

Geometry's calling

First revealed at last month's London Design Festival, these porcelain tiles are suitable for walls and floors, or wherever you need a little pick-me-up. They're the baby of designer Kelly Hoppen and tile company Fired Earth, and marry Hoppen's signature muted colour palette with the brand's ceramics know-how. 'Strip' (above) in 'Grey/White', £79.80 per sq m (firedearth.com).
